Woods Hardwick were appointed by project managers CS2 to work with Pallet distribution company Palletline Plc to develop a main hub concept for their new UK Headquarters / main hub operation.

Following feasibility studies on a number of options and configurations and the testing of a range of available locations, a site was finally selected to the north of Birmingham on the M42.

The scheme developed by Woods Hardwick provided a 550,000 sq ft main building, a 40,000 sq ft secondary building and a raised deck car park with a linking bridge to the main hub.

The final design used a pallet of materials to provide texture and interest to the principle elevations with a focal point of interest being provided by a projecting 'glass box' located beneath a triple curved roof structure.

A detailed planning application was submitted following a number of detailed meetings with the local authority and approval was achieved for this major project in just 8 weeks.
